A Letter from Principal Wardle

Bison Parents,

The new school year is underway, which means new schedules, new routines, and new opportunities. It is always an optimistic time of year for me, a new beginning, a way to start fresh.

One large change this year is, of course, a new start time of 8:15. For the past 2 weeks, it has been a wonderful time for students to be more rested in the morning, and several comments from teachers and students have been positive as everyone feels more ready to learn at the later start time. This lines up with an enormous amount of brain research and we are finding that to be true here at BG.

Another focus for staff and students this year is a singular process for our building as we focus on being problem solvers. I shared in my latest blog, but wanted to highlight again, our problem solving process, as it is useful in so many areas of student and adult life. Our desire is to grow our building capacity as collective problem solvers through a best-practice process. This aligns very closely with our S.E.L. (Social Emotional Learning) goals. Here is the model for our process:

Problem-Solving Cycle

I look forward to meeting many of you at Open House on Aug. 30th!
